CHI GANGSTERS ESCAPE AFTER STREET BRAWL

Attempt To Assassinate Men and Girl—Bystanders Shot
During Fight.

CHICAGO July 2—"Iron Man" John Alcock martialled emergency police forces today in the widespread search for a trio of gangsters who last night attempted to assassinate three henchmen of George Moran, gang leader, and a girl in a police automobile and under police protection.

Two men were shot, one fatally, in the furious gun battle which was fought through downtown streets as police squads pursued the killers' automobile. The attacking gangsters escaped, however, under cover of a dense fog from a smoke bomb tossed from the back seat of their sedan.

LINGLE SUSPECTS
The four persons marked for death had been arrested in Monday's raids as suspects in the murder of Alfred "Jake" Lingle, Chicago Tribune reporter, who was shot down by gangster's bullets on June 9.

Hundreds of pedestrians and motorists fled for cover as the bullets flew between the gangsters and police in the race down State street, commercial center of the city.

Elbert Lusader, motorman of a street car, was shot through the throat as his car passed through the line of fire. He died almost immediately. Olaf Svante, a watchman, was dropped by another bullet, but may live.

Jack Zuta, notorious director of Moran's vice and gambling interests and a suspect in the Lingle murder, was one of the party marked for the attack. His chief lieutenant, Solly Vision, was another, as was Albert Bantz, a henchman, the girl had given her name of Leona Bernstein.

Whether any of the Moran crew was wounded in the fusillade had not been determined at an early hour for the quartet leaped from the police machine at the first exchange of shots and disappeared.

HAD PROTECTION
All four were being driven from the defective bureau where they had been booked and released on bond after an all day grilling. Zuta asked police protection through the loop, fearing some such reprisal. Lieutenant George Barker, commander of the bomb squad volunteered to act as guard.

LOS ANGELES, CAL., July 2—An unholy alliance between Chicago racketeers and "Big Shot" Hollywood, Cal., bootleggers was under investigation today following the detention of a number of asserted eastern gangsters arrested in efforts of the police of Los Angeles and Chicago to solve the mystery surrounding the killing of Alfred (Jake) Lingle, Chicago newspaper reporter.

Investigators held five men and a woman, including Frank Foreman, 32, alias Frank Foster, alleged lieutenant in the "Mugs" Moran gang, Foreman was wanted in connection with the slaying of Lingle. He denied any knowledge of the affair.

The others in custody were: A beautiful 23-year-old woman, who is said to be Mrs. Frank Foreman, or Foster, wife of gangster George Davis, 35, and Frankie Fischer, 30, who is said by police to be an eastern gunman.

Marvin Hart, 29, reputed Hollywood bootlegger, who is said by officers to be Moran's "contact" man in Los Angeles.

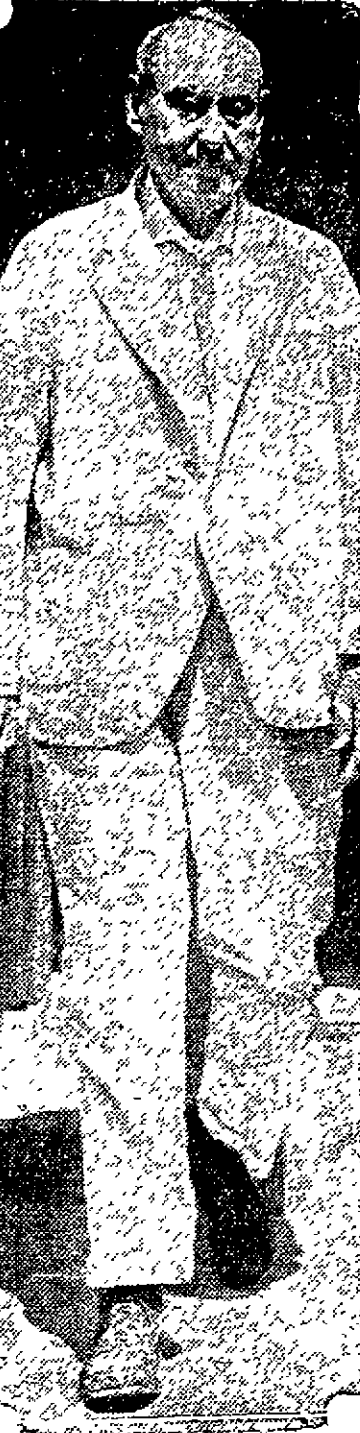

Herbert Williams, 38, who is said to be Herman Walter, brewmaster for Moran's Chicago breweries, sent to Los Angeles to establish a chain of breweries and distilleries for manufacture of beer and whiskey.

The murder mobs were ready to open their nefarious campaign in southern California, according to Chicago investigators. In conjunction with Hollywood bootleggers and hijackers the Chicago gangsters were preparing to "get going" here within the next few weeks.

OBTAIN MAIL
Letters that definitely linked the five men and woman with the George "Bugs" Moran gang were found by Illinois investigators. These documents and maps outlining the plan for establishing of brewery vats were placed in a vault awaiting further instructions from the state's attorney.

HOUSE, SENATE AT ODDS OVER CRIME MONEY

Continue Battle Today In Behalf of Raising Wickersham Law Fund.

WASHINGTON, July 2.—The House prepared again to battle today with the senate in behalf of the Hoover administration by raising the $50,000 voted by the senate for the Wickersham crime commission to $250,000 and removing the senate's limitation to a study of prohibition enforcement.

Extraordinary efforts were adopted by Republican leaders of the house, through its rules committee, to prevent defeat of their plan through technical objections.

With some doubt raised as to the legality of the House's action in attempting to raise the $50,000 beyond the amount in dispute the rules committee reported a resolution setting aside the rules to permit consideration of the $250,000 fund.

The usual limitation against consideration of such measures without advance notice also was set aside in a resolution of the rules committee. Rep. Wood (R) of Indiana, chairman of the appropriations committee, planned to press for action today in consideration of the conference report of the second deficiency bill.

STILL AT WORK
The Wickersham commission was still functioning, having been promised funds by President Hoover through private subscription of congress turns him down, but was legally out of existence. Its authority expired at midnight June 30.

Other prohibition matters continued to agitate both branches of congress.

The administration's border patrol bill was sent to the senate by the house, the measure having been passed as proposed by administration leaders.

With its passage the house completed favorable action on all of the major measures asked by Mr. Hoover to make prohibition enforcement more effective.

Under the border patrol bill, 2,500 agents of the immigration, customs and agriculture departments, will be brought into one uniformed patrol to prevent all smuggling on the Canadian and Mexican borders.

The bill was amended to lessen the annoyance to border residents, but passed with Reps. Lehlbach (R) of New Jersey, Clancy (D) of Michigan and O'Connor (D) of New York, declaring it creates new crimes from innocent acts. All persons crossing the border or sailing into Canadian waters, excepting on small, exempted boats, are required to register at customs houses.

METROPOLIS TO WELCOME BOBBY JONES

Throng of Atlantans Reach
New York For Royal Welcome of Favorite Son.

By JAMES L. KILGALLAN
NEW YORK, July 2 — "Bobby" Jones, king of clubs, (golf clubs), returns home from England in triumph this afternoon, and royal indeed will be his welcome.

NEARS STATUE
Jones, aboard the liner Europa, was nearing the Statue of Liberty this morning, coming back from England where he thrilled the golfing world by winning the British open and amateur championships, a feat accomplished only once before in the same year—by John Ball in 1890.

And, as a tribute to his golfing genius, the north and south—New York and Georgia—have joined hands in making this, "Bobby Jones Day," an occasion long to be remembered. The reception planned for the conquering golf hero will be reminiscent of greetings such as have been given to Lindbergh, Byrd, Kingsford-Smith, Chamberlain and those other heroes of the air.

"Bobby's" mother, a genteel, silver-haired southern woman, and once a fine golfer herself, is here. So is his dad. And so are a hundred or more prominent Georgians, who came up from Atlanta by special train, automobile and even by airplane to welcome America's kingpin golfer. As one of the visitors, Ralph Smith, columnist on an Atlanta paper put it, "We came to yell for the home town boy who annexed the British Empire to the East Lake (Atlanta) Golf Club."

GREET LINDER
A great harbor demonstration, participated in by tugs, yachts, fireboats and other craft, will greet Jones as he steams up the harbor. Squadrons of aeroplanes will soar overhead. The mayor's welcome committee, headed by Joseph Johnson, will go down the bay on the S. S. Macom, to meet the famous golfer. At the same time, the Georgia delegation, headed by

Up—Trees Provide Natural Landscaping.

Circleville's first miniature golf course will be opened Thursday night at seven o'clock. The management is rushing the construction and lighting of this 18-hole putting golf course, so that it will be ready for the public, the evening before the Fourth of July.

These courses have taken the entire country by storm, and have proved to be one of the most popular sports. The trick "Greens" are all shapes and angles, and are filled with intriguing bunkers and hazards.

The course is to be lighted at night by plenty of flood lights. The grass of the Seyfert park, and the large shade trees provide a natural landscaping for the course, which will make the place attractive and different from many of the courses, which have been placed in lots with no shade or grass.

Clubs and everything else will be furnished. Hollywood vases, jardiniere and bird baths, have been added to aid in the appearance of the course.

ROSS NEGROES SCORE G. O. P.

Organization Which Will Total
2,000, Decide To Vote In Best Interest.

The death knell of Solid Republicanism in the ranks of Chillicothe and Ross-co colored voters was tolled at a meeting of more than 300 progressive colored citizens of the County in Chillicothe Monday evening. The meeting was to form an organization in which the members adopted the high principle of using their ballots for the best interests regardless of party.

"No party and no price" is the slogan of the group which has a charter membership of 500 members. Many others are expected to join the ranks to make the total membership more than 2,000.

"The Republican party has never done much for the colored race," said Rev. Henry Estis of Chillicothe, a vice president in the league. "It is time for us not to stick to any one party."

METROPOLIS TO WELCOME BOBBY JONES

Throng of Atlantans Reach
New York For Royal Welcome of Favorite Son.

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
NEW YORK, July 2 — "Bobby" Jones, king of clubs, (golf clubs), returns home from England in triumph this afternoon, and royal indeed will be his welcome.

NEARS STATUE

Jones, aboard the liner Europa, was nearing the Statue of Liberty this morning, coming back from England where he thrilled the golfing world by winning the British open and amateur championships, a feat accomplished only once before in the same year—by John Ball in 1890.

And, as a tribute to his golfing genius, the north and south—New York and Georgia—have joined hands in making this, "Bobby Jones Day," an occasion long to be remembered. The reception planned for the conquering golf hero will be reminiscent of greetings such as have been given to Lindbergh, Byrd, Kingsford-Smith, Chamberlin and those other heroes of the air.

"Bobby's" mother, a genteel, silver-haired southern woman, and once a fine golfer herself, is here. So is his dad. And so are a hundred or more prominent Georgians, who came up from Atlanta by special train, automobile and even by airplane to welcome America's kingpin golfer. As one of the visitors, Ralph Smith, columnist on an Atlanta paper put it, "We came to yell for the home town boy who annexed the British Empire to the East Lake (Atlanta) Golf Club."

GREET LIVER

A great harbor demonstration, participated in by tugs, yachts, fireboats and other craft, will greet Jones as he steams up the harbor. Squads of aeroplanes will soar overhead. The mayor's welcome committee, headed by Joseph Johnson, will go down the bay on the S. S. Macon, to meet the famous golfer. At the same time, the Georgia delegation, headed by

GERMANY BREATHES SIGH OF RELIEF, TROOPS LEAVE LAND

By OTTO D. TOLISCHUS
BERLIN—All Germany breathed a sign of relief today as the last troops of the French and Belgian armies of occupation moved out of the Rhineland territories, which they had guarded for almost twelve years.

The liberated populace, free from military rule for the first time since the war ended, was in holiday spirit. The German flag replaced the French and Belgian emblems on government buildings, and homes throughout the occupied area were draped with flags and bunting.

On the stroke of midnight, the Rhineland will be declared officially evacuated. President Von Hindenburg will lead nationwide ceremonies which will continue until the middle of July, but the first stroke of midnight in the Rhineland church belfries is expected to be the signal for a popular demonstration unparalleled in German history.

There was only one discordant note in the pageant of joy sung throughout the liberated territories. In Mainz, threats were made to lynch separatists accused of spreading propaganda for establishment of a Rhineland Republic. Windows were broken in the homes of Separatists and threats of violence were made openly.

Coincident with the departure of troops, celebrations were held in various parts of the Rhineland. One of the largest was around the National Niederwald monument in Mainz, where illumination has been forbidden by officials of the army of occupation until now. The illumination fixtures were restored.

to working order as thousands cheered the spectacle.

In the presence of M. Paul Thard, head of the Rhineland commission, the French, English and Belgian flags were lowered at the Hotel Wilhelma, headquarters of commission, in Weisbaden. A guard of 500 troops and numerous tourists were present at the ceremony. Immediately afterward, the commission departed on a special train.

CHILD WINS LIFE FIGHT

MARTINS FERRY, O., July 2—Emma Johnson, 18, today was believed to have won her fight for life against snake poison.

The girl was poisoned last Thursday when she was bitten six times by several large copperhead snakes while she was picking blackberries near her home here.

She became delirious from the venom and wandered in the hills for two hours before she was found. Special Brazilian serum was brought here from Philadelphia by airplane. Physicians at first believed the bites would prove fatal. Her condition was greatly improved today, however.

TEST SKILL AS DRIVER

Residents of Circleville are to have an opportunity to test their driving skill at the wheel of a Chevrolet Six, enjoy the fun that comes from participating in any contest, and at the same time be paid for their expert handling of the car to the extent of $25 in cash that will be offered in prizes.

The Harden-Stevenson Co., local Chevrolet dealer has announced an Economy Driver's Contest, which started July 1, which resulted in a rush of contestants, eager to test their driving skill and win some extra vacation money. A stock model Chevrolet Six has been equipped with a Mason glass jar, mounted outside the hood and plainly visible. A pint of gasoline will be placed therein and each contestant will start from the dealer's place of business and drive over a selected route until the gasoline is exhausted.

A cordial invitation is extended to the public at large to participate in this contest. Entrance in the contest will not obligate a person in any manner. It is necessary only that you register, in person or by telephone, at the showroom of the Harden-Stevenson Co. and receive a day and hour for your trial run.

Because of the fact that considerable interest has already been manifested in the contest, even before its announcement in the paper, it is suggested that you register at once, and be certain to secure the opportunity for an early trial. Every effort will be made to accommodate each person as to the time of their trial and they will also be advised of any necessary change in their hour.

DON'T BE A SLAVE TO LAXATIVES

Mrs. E. Gebhard, 301 W. 5th St., Newport, Ky., says, "My husband and I were actually slaves to laxatives, continually dosing ourselves with something to relieve constipation. Just couldn't stop. It got to be a habit. We even gave our children laxatives in candy form. Little did we realize that we were only aggravating and not reaching the cause of the constipation. Headaches, biliousness, indigestion and constipation still continued."

Our druggist recommended Carter's Little Liver Pills. He said these little vegetable pills would tone up the liver, stir up the bile, which acts as an antiseptic, keeps the food from rotting, and poisoning the blood. They are not habit forming and thoroughly cleanse the upper and lower bowel. Laxatives fail to do this. Carter's Little Liver Pills are sold at all Druggists in 26c red paper packages.

BLACKMAIL PLOT IS OUT

WARREN, O., July 2.—Details of an alleged extortion plot were bare here today with the arrest of Miss Beatrice Burch, pretty Youngstown girl, as a state's witness against Danny James, Mineral Ridge radio singer, who is charged with blackmailing wealthy Trumbull county business men.
Telling her side of the story today, Miss Burch declared that she was working with James in the scheme merely "as a reformer," according to police.
The girl admitted in her alleged story that she "vamped" two Mineral Ridge business men, but said that she did it to "learn them a lesson." She said that James had told her the men were making dates with young girls.
"Danny said that if I'd make love to them, we could learn them a lesson. I just wanted to reform them," the girl was reported to have said.
Police stated they believed the alleged blackmail plot had been worked on both Warren and Youngstown. A girl "spotter" would lure wealthy businessmen into having dinner dates. After which the pair would be accosted by a man who claimed the girl to be his wife. Court action would be threatened and the victim of the plot would usually pay "hush money," it was said.

COMMUNIST IS SHOT BY COP

NEW YORK, July 2.—Police patroled sections in Harlem district, today, following a near riot in which one man was killed during a Communist meeting. The victim, Gonzalo Gonzales, a Mexican communist, was shot to death by Patrolman Edmund O'Brien.
The policeman said he shot the man after Gonzales had snatched his night stick and started beating him with it.
Gonzales was leading a parade of Communist to an undertaking establishment to view the body of Alfred Luro, Negro Communist, shot in a brawl last week. When O'Brien sought to stop the parade it was claimed by the officer Gonzales attacked him.

BANKING HEAD TAKES OFFICE

COLUMBUS, O., July 2.—Edward A. Seiter, first vice president of the Fifth Third Union Trust Company, at Cincinnati, assumed his duties as president of the Ohio Bankers' Association. Officers of the state group in past years have not assumed office until September 1. The time was changed to July 1 at this year's meeting of the organization.
Seiter succeeds Allen B. Whitney, president of the Citizens' Savings Bank at Upper Sandusky. George H. Dunn, president of the Central Depositors bank and Trust Company at Akron, is the new vice president of the association.

And How!
Out in Ohio's rubber city, the Akron Beacon-Journal was asked to define a propagandist. The editor stretched a point in his reply. "A propagandist," said he, "is a person who can take a fragment of truth and make a large convincing lie."

DRUG-CRAZED WOMAN HELD

GLOBE, Ariz., July 2.—Tranie Best, 40, crazed from narcotics, according to police, was being held following the beating of her three small children into insensibility then attempting to hurl them over a 200-foot cliff.
Summoned by neighbors, Chief of Police Shute, reached the scene as the crazed mother was carrying, Ruth, 3, to the brink of the cliff. Paul, 7, and Mary, 10, were found in a semi-conscious condition in a shack where they had been held prisoners and frequently beaten during the past two weeks.

EMBEZZLER TO GO TO TRIAL

CINCINNATI, O., July 2.—Date for the trial of Amor W. Shafer, former district manager of the H. L. Doherty Company, whose extensive stock market speculations are said to have resulted in the closing of two banks here, was expected to be set today.
Shafer pleaded not guilty to three charges of embezzlement from the Doherty company yesterday.
State and federal officials said that Shafer's marginal activities and check kiting forced the closing of the Cosmopolitan bank and the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks' national bank.

LIBERTY

The Fourth of July, 1776, was the day when the American people rose up on their hind legs and asserted their rights, political and individual. Thomas Jefferson, covering a good deal of ground, asserted the natural and inalienable rights of every body to "Life, Liberty and the pursuit of happiness." Ever since we have celebrated the day by renewed assertion of our rights.

Very well! But how about the other fellow's rights? Suppose we think a little about that, and suit action to thought.

It is fine, as Daniel Webster urged us, to celebrate the day with "bonfires and illuminations." But does that justify burning a neighbor's house down or blasting the ears of sensitive people all day long with cannon crackers and torpedoes, or making the late evening and early morning hideous for several days in succession?

It is fine to go out into the country for a picnic and a pleasant day in the woods and fields. But it is not so fine to destroy trees, shrubs and grass and to leave other peoples property littered with debris.

It is a "Glorious Fourth" if our children turn it into an imitation of war and blow each others ears off and eyes out.

There is no liberty with license. There are no rights for any of us unless, while asserting our own, we recognize the rights of others.

BEARING THE HEAT

Hot? Don't ask.
Cool clothing—for men as well as women. A tepid bath in the morning and a cool one at night. Stop work for five minutes at intervals and splash cool water over the wrists and the back of the neck.

Eat mostly green vegetables with a little meat or milk. Drink the milk slowly, never without a cracker or some other food. Eat at the regular times, enough to keep the strength up, but don't stuff, and go lightly on fats and starches. Eat more fruits, especially citrus fruits.

And get all the sleep you can. Staying up because it's too hot to sleep is the worst idea there is. Don't actively try to sleep, or fret if you don't. Just know it's hot and let it be hot, and lie quietly in the dark and let your body rest and your mind wake quietly. You're bound to get some sleep that way, and a lot of rest, and be quite reasonably fresh in the morning.

And all things pass. There are some strange people who enjoy the summer. If you're that kind, meditate on the compensations while awaiting the slight coolness before the dawn. If you're not, count hopefully the days, really few, till September.

POWER FROM THE SEA

Prof. Georges Claude, French scientist, has failed for the second time in his efforts to harness tropical waters and extract the heat from them for industrial use. The steel tube, a mile long, which was to bring up ice-cold water from the bottom of the Caribbean Sea to condense the steam obtained by vacuum process from the warm surface water, was swept away while being set in place.

The principle seems sound. The professor is backed by American capital and the work, it may be assumed, will go on. So vast a source of potential energy cannot be ignored in an age whose chief need is industrial power. The sun-born idea of sea water is greater than the energy stored in the world's coal, and is being continually renewed.

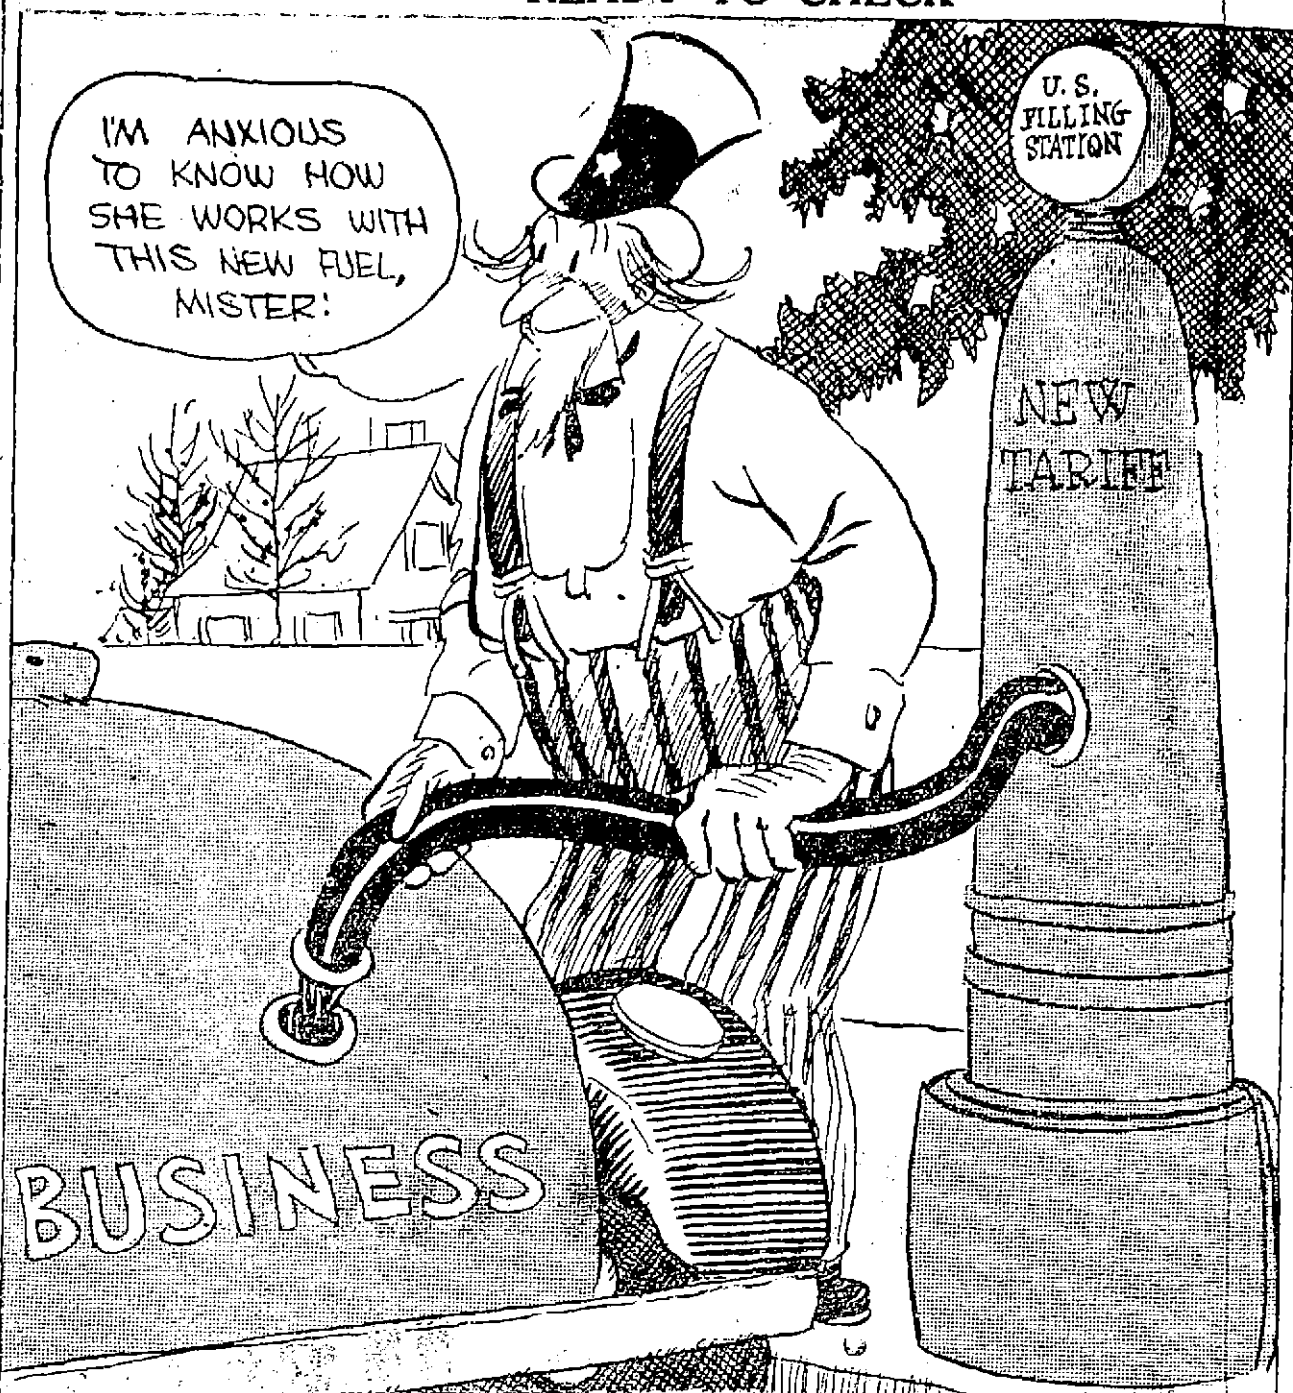

It is not only in the tropics, either, that this vast energy is obtainable. Scientists have shown that power can be obtained from Arctic waters, by means of steam engines using gasoline or some other highly volatile liquid to produce vapor and condensing it with all the power and heat needed by mankind in the Far North may be obtained in that way.

Having done everything it could think of to help business, and failed, Congress will now go home—which will help some.

For a passive resistance movement, that home ride campaign in India seems to have a surprising number of fatalities.

Everybody is asking whether the Lindbergh baby is starting to grow wings. But don't they know that cherubs are always born with 'em?

READY TO CHECK

"WHERE'S EMILY?"

by CAROLYN WELLS

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

EMILY DUANE and her friend, Pauline Pennington, disappear on Emily's wedding rehearsal day. Emily had gone to visit the hospital, but never arrived there. After leaving the Duane home, Pauline also vanished. Later, Pauline's body is found in the ravine, and, close by, Emily's scarf.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XIX.

THEY retired to the other end of the long room and talked among themselves. It was easier without Sayre, for though they all loved Emily, it was not the vital thing to them that it was to Rodney, and they began to feel the excitement of it all rising above the grief.

And, too, there was always hope. Whatever had happened, Emily might yet return, and soon. Sayre's voice interrupted them.

"People," he said, "come back here."

From his seat on the sofa he spoke like a magnate from his throne.

They trailed back, wondering. "This," said Rod, holding up the fur, "must be reported to the police. I wonder you haven't seen that before. I wonder I didn't see it sooner. It's most important evidence. We have no right to hold it back a moment. It's our duty to tell them—and, if they ask it, to turn it over to them."

"You're right, old man," Gibby said, really after being told, the truth of the matter.

"Do you mean to-night?" asked Lamb.

"I think so. It's only a little after midnight, and those police chaps are not early birds. Want to telephone, Lammie?"

"Yes. Will you call me?"

"I think I'd like to have a bit of what may be evidence, and shall we telephone about it, or will they toddle round?"

Lamb inwardly rejoiced that Sayre was at least coming out of his apathy enough to speak a little more lightly, and went to the booth.

He returned to say Lawlor would be right over.

The detective came and listened to the story.

He was greatly impressed. He seemed astounded, and his expression was deeply regretful.

He accepted their declarations that the fur was positively Emily's and that she had positively worn it when she left the house. Also their statement that Mrs. Pennington had not worn her fur, which was exactly like it.

"You think it important?" asked Gibby, trying to gauge the detective's mind.

"Vitality. At what time did McGuire give you this?"

"Just after they had taken Mrs. Pennington to the hospital. I said I would restore it to Mr. Pennington, as of course we assumed it to be hers."

"Of course. Well, I'll have to take it along," Lawlor sighed deeply. "Look here," he said, suddenly, "which of this house find Mrs. Pennington or Miss Duane?"

"Why, I don't know," Betty said, taking it on herself to answer. "You see, Emily just hung word to Mrs. Bell and myself to say proper good-byes to departing guests, as she would be away for a few minutes."

"You thought nothing of that?" "Mercy no. Why should I?"

"What time was that?"

"I don't know. About five, I guess."

"Well, did Mrs. Pennington go then?"

"Let me see, she—"

"I know this much," Sayre put in. "Emily said good-bye to the Penningtons, for I saw and heard her. Then she came to me and told me she was going over to the hospital, and she went immediately. I should say they left about the same time, within five minutes or so."

"Mrs. Pennington must have gone first," said Lawlor decidedly. "How do you get that?" asked Gibby, concluding the police asked detective was better than he had thought.

"Why, if Miss Duane had gone first, she would have gone on to the hospital and Mrs. Pennington couldn't have met her on the bridge."

"How do you know they did meet on the bridge?"

"If, otherwise, could Mrs. Pennington become possessed of Miss Duane's fur?"

"Perhaps Miss Duane dropped her fur piece as she was on her way to the hospital and Mrs. Pennington retrieved it." This from Lamb, who was thinking deeply.

"Perhaps, but that necessitates Miss Duane's having gone first."

"I can't see," put in Nell petulantly, "what earthly difference it makes which one went first."

"That's the difference. If Miss Duane went first, she was surely

"It's always done in a case of a death unattended by any physician, or—well, I don't know, I'm sure, but I'm almost certain there'll be one. A mere matter of form, they'll call it. But the case has its queer points."

He seemed to forget his audience, and sat staring at the fur. Then suddenly, "Well, I'll be going. You've told me all you know."

His keen gaze rested on one after another, and he felt sure no one was keeping anything back.

"Just one more thing, Mr. Lawlor," sounded Sayre's clear voice. "Oh, no, not about this matter—we've all told every word we know. But I know how busy you must be with it, especially if there's going to be an inquest and all that, and also because I want to do everything I can, I propose to call in a celebrated detective to take up the matter of Miss Duane's disappearance. He will have no connection, of course, with the Pennington matter, and will in no way interfere with the police work, but I feel I must do this and I thought you ought to know."

"Thank you, Mr. Sayre, for your over the ravine bridge and on her way before Mrs. Pennington appeared."

"Proving," said Burton Lamb, "that Miss Duane didn't tell Mrs. Pennington about the Laurence baby, and so threw her into a melancholy fit, which caused her to end her life. That it?"

"Something like that," said Lawlor.

"Do you think her fall was not an accident?" asked Rodney, his face suddenly changing.

"I'm almost certain it was not. The bridge rails are not worn or broken in any way."

"Somebody said they were."

"It may have looked so because the vines were broken and torn. They are so carefully kept that any imperfection shows at once. And at the place where Mrs. Pennington's fall occurred, they are greatly mangled."

"And you think she threw her self over?" Betty spoke sobbingly.

"I can't express any opinion about it, ma'am. It is all very mysterious, and this fur business makes the mystery deeper. In fact, it means that there must now be an inquest."

"An inquest? Whatever for?" cried Nell.

thoughtfulness. And I may say I think you're doing a wise thing."

"What a nice man," said Betty as the detective went away.

"Quicker-witted than I thought the police ones were," said Gibby, with a grudging admiration. His opinion of himself as a Sherlock Holmes was rapidly dwindling, for he realized he had done absolutely nothing as yet.

"An inquest? Think of it!" exclaimed Nell. "Do you suppose we can do all that?"

"Sure," returned Pete. "They'll want us."

"My heavens! To testify, or whatever you call it?"

Insulin Has Lessened The Fear of Diabetes

With Diet Care, Calm and Sane Living, There Is No Reason Why the Diabetic Should Not Live a Normal, Busy Life, Says Authority

disease. To be thirsty every ten minutes, and at night, is a suspicious symptom. Steady loss of flesh is noticed in diabetes, and indigestion. The nerves are apt to appear. Repeated boils are indications of a run-down condition. Terrible itching of the skin is another sign of diabetes. The nerves are affected. There may be severe cramps in the calves of the legs, or neuralgia. One may have headache.

As the disease progresses the loss of flesh continues. The strength and vigor diminish. Where the diabetes is of long standing the eyes become inflamed and troublesome. Sometimes a "cataract" develops, a form known as "diabetic cataract."

Much has been accomplished by dieting. If insulin is used it may not be necessary to diet. It is a good thing, however, to reduce the sugar carrying foods. The first care should be to eat less starches and sugar than it has been the practice to take.

Because you should not live a normal and busy life, with due care to diet, moderation in all things, and care of the body.

Answers to Health Queries

A Reader. Q.—What causes an itching over the body? There is no sign of a rash of any kind.

A.—This condition may be due to constipation, auto-intoxication, intestinal disturbance, poor nutrition, over eating, or to some food poisoning. Fear, embarrassment and certain diseases of the nervous system may also cause this condition.

Mrs. A. B. Q.—I cannot walk any distance without losing my breath. I am 39 years of age and have been doctoring for a heart condition for two years. What would you advise?

A.—The symptom in question is due to the heart condition. Avoid undue exertion and fatigue and be careful not to over-eat. Your doctor will advise any further treatment you may need.

Thank you. Q.—Is it serious if the soft spot on the top of the baby's head is not gone before the child has reached the age of two, and a half years of age?

A.—Have the baby examined; there may be a touch of rickets at the source of the trouble. This condition is usually cleared up before this age. Proper treatment will overcome the trouble.

J. D. S. Q.—What do you advise for hemiplegia?

A.—Massage and electricity approved. Stimulate the affected muscles as much as possible. The cause must be removed. (Copyright, 1930, Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.)

AT THE METROPOLITAN

According to Martin Johnson, famous explorer and wild animal photographer, who is to be seen and heard in "Across The World With Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson" at the Metropolitan Theatre this week, lions in their natural habitat are seldom as imposing as those to be seen in circuses and zoos.

He considers himself very fortunate in having been able to photograph scores of them for this picture while they were in good condition as to flesh and mane, but says that in most cases, wild lions have very short manes, due to the burs and briars of their customary haunts. These get in the long hair of their manes and when the lion lies down to remove them, his claws are more likely than not to pull out great quantities of hair along with the burs.

Most of the lion pictures in "Across The World With Mr. and Mrs. Johnson" were made in Tanganyika, British East Africa, and there, Mr. Johnson says, lions are found in quantity and quality equalled nowhere else on earth. This is due, he believes, to the fact that few hunters and explorers ever penetrate to the valleys in which the lions live and they are not molested or frightened in any way. Few of them, he believes, have ever seen a human being, and for that reason are not afraid of them, as are the members of their families in districts more frequently visited by man.

"Across The World With Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson" is an all talking picture and in it Mr. Johnson explains how he and Mrs. Johnson were able to approach to within a few feet of hundreds of specimens. In one scene ten fine specimens of the lion family are seen feeding at one time.

AT THE CLIFTONA

LIBERTY

The Fourth of July, 1776, was the day when the American people rose up on their hind legs and asserted their rights, political and individual. Thomas Jefferson, covering a good deal of ground, asserted the natural and inalienable rights of everybody to "Life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness." Ever since we have celebrated the day by renewed assertion of our rights.

Very well! But how about the other fellow's rights? Suppose we think a little about that, and suit action to thought.

It is fine, as Daniel Webster urged us, to celebrate the day with "bonfires and illuminations." But does that justify burning a neighbor's house down or blasting the ears of sensitive people all day long with cannon crackers and torpedoes, or making the late evening and early morning hideous for several days in succession?

It is fine to go out into the country for a picnic and a pleasant day in the woods and fields. But it is not so fine to destroy trees, shrubs and grass and to leave other peoples property littered with debris.

It is a "Glorious Fourth" if our children turn it into an imitation of war and blow each others' ears off and eyes out.

There is no liberty with license. There are no rights for any of us unless, while asserting our own, we recognize the rights of others.

BEARING THE HEAT

Hot? Don't ask.
Cool clothing—for men as well as women. A tepid bath in the morning and a cool one at night. Stop work for five minutes at intervals and splash cool water over the wrists and the back of the neck.

Eat mostly green vegetables with a little meat or milk. Drink the milk slowly, never without a cracker or some other food. Eat at the regular times, enough to keep the strength up, but don't stuff, and go lightly on fats and starches. Eat more fruits, especially citrus fruits.

And get all the sleep you can. Staying up because it's too hot to sleep is the worst idea there is. Don't actively try to sleep, or fret if you don't. Just know it's hot and let it be hot, and lie quietly in the dark and let your body rest and your mind wait quietly. You're bound to get some sleep that way, and a lot of rest, and be quite reasonably fresh in the morning.

And all things pass. There are some strange people who enjoy the summer. If you're that kind, meditate on the compensations while awaiting the slight coolness before the dawn. If you're not, count hopefully the days, really few, till September.

POWER FROM THE SEA

Prof. Georges Claude, French scientist, has failed for the second time in his efforts to harness tropical waters and extract the heat from them for industrial use. The steel tube, a mile long, which was to bring up ice-cold water from the bottom of the Caribbean Sea to condense the steam obtained by vacuum process from the warm surface water, was swept away while being set in place.

The principle seems sound. The professor is backed by American capital and the work, it may be assumed, will go on. So vast a source of potential energy cannot be ignored in an age whose chief need is industrial power. The sun-born idea of sea water is greater than the energy stored in the world's coal, and is being continually renewed.

It is not only in the tropics, either, that this vast energy is obtainable. Scientists have shown that power can be obtained from Arctic waters, by means of steam engines using gasoline or some other highly volatile liquid to produce vapor and condensing it with all the power and heat needed by mankind in the Far North may be obtained in that way.

Having done everything it could think of to help business, and failed, Congress will now go home—which will help some.

For a passive resistance movement, that home rule campaign in India seems to have a surprising number of fatalities.

Everybody is asking whether the Lindbergh baby is starting to grow wings. But don't they know that cherubs are always born with 'em?

"WHERE'S EMILY?"

by CAROLYN WELLS

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

EMILY DUANE and her friend, Pauline Pennington, disappeared on Emily's wedding rehearsal day. Emily had gone to visit the hospital, but never arrived there. After leaving the Duane home, Pauline also vanishes. Later, Pauline's body is found in the ravine, and, close by, Emily's scarf.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XIX.
THEY retired to the other end of the long room and talked among themselves. It was easier without Sayre, for though they all loved Emily, it was not the vital thing to them that it was to Rodney, and they began to feel the excitement of it all rising above the grief.

And, too, there was always hope. Whatever had happened, Emily might yet return safe and sound. Sayre's voice interrupted them. "People," he said, "come back here."

From his seat on the sofa he spoke like a magistrate from his throne.

They trailed back, wondering. "This," said Rod, holding up the fur, "must be reported to the police. I wonder you haven't seen that before. I wonder I didn't see it sooner. It's most important evidence. We have no right to hold it back a moment. It's our duty to tell them—and, if they ask it, to turn it over to them."

"You're right, old man," Gibby said, realizing, after being told, the truth of the matter.

"Do you mean to-night?" asked Lamb.

"I think so. It's only a little after midnight, and those police chaps are not early birds. Want to telephone, Lammie?"

"Yes. What shall I say?"

"I think I'd say that we have a bit of what may be evidence, and shall we telephone about it, or will they toddle round?"

Lamb inwardly rejoiced that Sayre was at least coming out of his apathy enough to speak a little more lightly, and went to the booth.

He returned to say Lawlor would be right over.

The detective came and listened to the story.

He was greatly impressed, he seemed astounded, and his expression was deeply regretful.

He accepted their declarations that the fur was positively Emily's and that she had positively worn it when she left the house. Also their statement that Mrs. Pennington had not worn her fur, which was exactly like it.

"You think it important?" asked Gibby, trying to gauge the detective's mind.

"Vitality. At what time did McGuire give you this?"

"Just after they had taken Mrs. Pennington to the hospital. I said I would restore it to Mr. Pennington, as of course we assumed it to be hers."

"Of course. Well, I'll have to take it along," Lawlor sighed deeply. "Look here," he said, suddenly, "which left this house first, Mrs. Pennington or Miss Duane?"

"Why, I don't know," Betty said, taking it on herself to answer. "You see, Emily just flung a word to Mrs. Bell and myself to say proper good-bys to departing guests, as she would be away for a few minutes."

"You thought nothing of that?" "Mercy, no. Why should I?" "What time was that?"

"I don't know. About five, I guess."

"It's always done in a case of a death unattended by any physician, or—well, I don't know. I'm sure, but I'm almost certain there'll be one. A mere matter of form, they'll call it. But the case has its queer points."

He seemed to forget his audience, and sat staring at the fur. Then suddenly, "Well, I'll be going. You've told me all you know?"

His keen gaze rested on one after another, and he felt sure no one was keeping anything back.

"Just one more thing, Mr. Lawlor," sounded Sayre's clear voice. "We've all told every word we know. But I know how busy you must be with it, especially if there's going to be an inquest and all that; and also because I want to do everything I can, I propose to call in a celebrated detective to take up the matter of Miss Duane's disappearance. He will have no connection, of course, with the Pennington matter, and will in no way interfere with the police work, but I feel I must do this and I thought you ought to know."

"Thank you, Mr. Sayre, for your thoughtfulness. And I may say I think you're doing a wise thing."

"What a nice man," said Betty as the detective went away.

"Quicker-witted than I thought the police ones were," said Gibby, with a grudging admiration. His opinion of himself as a Sherlock Holmes was rapidly dwindling, for he realized he had done absolutely nothing as yet.

"An inquest! Think of it!" exclaimed Nell. "Do you suppose we can all go?"

"Sure," returned Pete. "They'll want 'em! My heavens! To testify, or whatever you call it?"

"Maybe. An inquest in Hillsdale is bound to be properly conducted. How'd you like to be in the witness box?"

"I'd love it," responded Nell, truthfully. "It'll give me a thrill. I liked Pauline all right, but of course, I knew her only slightly, and Mr. Pennington I scarcely knew at all. I'm terribly sorry for him, but truly, all my sorrow and sympathy is for Roddy and our own crowd here of Emily's friends. Oh, where's Emily? I can't see through this fur business at all. over the ravine bridge and on her way before Mrs. Pennington appeared.

"Proving," said Burton Lamb, "that Miss Duane didn't tell Mrs. Pennington about the Laurence baby, and so threw her into a melancholy fit, which caused her to end her life. That it?"

"Something like that," said Lawlor.

"Do you think her fall was not an accident?" asked Rodney, his face suddenly changing.

"I'm almost certain it was not. The bridge rails are not worn or broken in any way."

"Somebody said they were."

"It may have looked so because the vines were broken and torn. They are so carefully kept that any imperfection shows at once. And at the place where Mrs. Pennington's fall occurred, they are greatly mangled."

"And you think she threw her self over?" Betty spoke sobbingly.

"I can't express any opinion about it, ma'am. It is all very mysterious, and this fur business makes the mystery deeper. In fact, it means that there must now be an inquest."

"An inquest? Whatever for?" cried Nell.

AT THE METROPOLITAN

According to Martin Johnson, famous explorer and wild animal photographer, who is to be seen and heard in "Across The World With Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson" at the Metropolitan Theatre this week, lions in their natural habitat are seldom as imposing as those to be seen in circuses and zoos.

He considers himself very fortunate in having been able to photograph scores of them for this picture while they were in good condition as to flesh and mane, but says that in most cases, wild lions have very short manes, due to the burs and briars of their customary haunts. These get in the long hair of their manes and when the lion lies down to remove them, his claws are more likely than not to pull out great quantities of hair along with the burs.

Most of the lion pictures in "Across The World With Mr. and Mrs. Johnson" were made in Tanganyika, British East Africa, and there, Mr. Johnson says, lions are found in quantity and quality equalled nowhere else on earth. This is due, he believes, to the fact that few hunters and explorers ever penetrate to the valleys in which the lions live and they are not molested or frightened in any way. Few of them, he believes, have ever seen a human being, and for that reason are not afraid of them, as are the members of their families in districts more frequently visited by man.

"Across The World With Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson" is an all talking picture and in it Mr. Johnson explains how he and Mrs. Johnson were able to approach to within a few feet of hundreds of specimens. In one scene ten fine specimens of the lion family are seen feeding at one time.

KINGSTON

A small but appreciative audience greeted the talented members of the group of out-of-town entertainers on Wednesday afternoon when the benefit musical tea was given in the community room, which was beautifully decorated with many baskets of summer flowers, each small table was centered with a crystal vase holding sweet peas. The first number on the program with Mrs. Lenore Webb acting as announcer was a duet by Mrs. Ella McKee Erdman and Mrs. S. T. Yaple singing "Minnie Tonka," accompanied by Mrs. Dard Hunter. A group of songs by Miss Helen Marion accompanied by Miss Abbe Mills Clark was "A Picture," "The Shepherd Song," and "Night Winds." A group of songs by Mrs. S. T. Yaple was "Lady Moon," "Mother Heart," and "I hear the Lark at Dawn." A group of songs by Mrs. Erdman was "Pastoral," and English song, "The Little Cloud," and "Advice." A duet by Mrs. Erdman and Mrs. Yaple singing "Mistress Mary." A group of songs by Miss Marion was "Oh Mr. Piper," "Nursery Rhymes," and "A Little Bit of Honey," closed this very delightful and choice selection of songs by this group of gracious ladies who sang so beautifully and were accompanied so capably. During the delicious salad course and tea following the audience was further entertained by Miss Ruth Penette Rittenour on the violin and Miss Mary Ruth Tolbert on the piano playing popular songs of the day. The luncheon consisted of chicken salad, rolled cheese sandwiches, tea and mints. Mrs. Erdman, Mrs. Yaple and Mrs. Hunter were from Chillicothe and Miss Marion and Miss Clark were from Circleville. THE VALUE of SOUND DESIGN

New Ford engine gives outstanding acceleration, speed and power without sacrificing reliability or economy

THE GOOD PERFORMANCE of the Ford car, so apparent on every highway, is due largely to the sound mechanical design of the engine.

It has outstanding acceleration, speed and power, yet that is only part of its value to you. Greater still is the fact that it brings you all these features without sacrificing either reliability or economy.

That is the reason the Ford car has given such satisfactory service to millions of motorists all over the world and has been chosen by so many large companies that keep accurate cost figures. In every detail of construction it has been carefully planned and made for the work it has to do.

The design of the compression chamber is an important factor in the efficiency of the Ford engine. It is built to allow free passage of gases through the valves and to thoroughly mix the fuel by producing turbulence within the cylinders during compression. The spark thus flashes quickly through the whole fuel charge, resulting in quieter and more effective engine performance.

Other factors are the direct gravity gasoline feed, the specially designed carburetor, the new hot-spot manifold, aluminum pistons, chrome silicon alloy valves of larger diameter, statically and dynamically balanced crankshaft and flywheel, simplicity of the electrical, cooling, lubrication, and fuel systems and accuracy in manufacturing.

THREE TO DEFEAT TEAM BY 6-4 SCORE

Displaying strength that herefore has been lacking the Modern Woodmen ball team emerged from the cellar position of the first half to go into a tie for first place in the second half by virtue of a 6-4 victory over the C. C. of A. aggregation Tuesday evening at Masons field.

And when "Bobby" is landed at the Battery he will be paraded in triumph up lower Broadway to City Hall where Mayor James J. Walker will present him with the City's Scroll of Honor. Bands will play, and Miss Helen Schaefer, soloist, will sing the Star Spangled Banner. A huge crowd is expected to see the ceremonies and cheer Jones along the line of march.

Mrs. Jones, "Bobby's" mother, has been ill and is not feeling strong and she may not go down the bay to meet her son. But "Bobby's" father, Robert P. Jones, a rugged, bronze-faced man of 51, will go down the harbor with the Georgia delegation.

A GOOD SON

"We're very proud of our boy," said Mr. Jones, in an interview with International News Service. "We think we have reason to be proud of him. He is not only a good golfer, but a good son." Jones, Sr., talked quite frankly about his famous son, and about golf. He revealed that "Bobby's" mother is an ardent golf fan, and once a fine player herself. She used to shoot in the low 90's. Asked what he shoots he declined to say, although a friend was listening to the interview classified him as "one of the ten players in Atlanta." He won weepstakes at the Eastlake Club in Atlanta, recently. "game," said "Bobby's" father, "reminds me of a story a newspaper man wrote about the late George P. Flynn's game. He said Mr. Flynn played the game furiously and bitterly."

KONJOLA FREES BOY, 11, FROM KIDNEY TROUBLE

MASTER GEORGE RAYMOND BAECHE.

"Konjola will always have a place in our home. That it has been said countless times by parents who know what this new and different medicine can do. Now read the words of Mrs. Helen Baechle, 1012 Purcell street, Cincinnati, who relates the experience of George Raymond Baechle, 11, her grandson:

"My grandson, who lives with me, was bothered with kidney trouble ever since he was a baby. His bladder was active at night, and he lacked energy and vitality. Konjola worked wonders for me and I decided to give it to George. The first bottle gave encouragement, and after he took three bottles, his bladder action became normal. Today he looks fine and feels better than he ever did. Konjola will always have a place in our home."

It is very true that Konjola loses no time when put to the test, but it is strongly recommended that a complete treatment of from six to eight bottles be used. Konjola is sold in Circleville at Hamilton & Ryan's drug store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—Adv.

a good brand of ball all through the game.

The Foresters started the ball a rolling in the first half of the sixth inning when they scored three runs to the one run scored by the boxmakers in the latter part of that inning.

The seventh inning the paper-makers head the axmen scoreless and proceeded to push three of their men across the rubber to take a one run lead over the Woodmen aggregation.

Neither team succeeded in increasing their score in the next frame, but in the next trip to the plate the Radcliff men clubbed the old pill in earnest fashion and scored three runs to win the game.

Raymond Brungs of the C. C. of A. pitched a good game of ball for the paper-makers. Brungs walked two men and fanned one, while Hall, the Woodmen pitcher, allowed only one man to take a free trip to the first sack and he had two strike outs to his credit.

Blue stain on lumber is not a form of rot nor can it become a form of rot. It is a fungous growth, but not the one which rots wood. Its only bad feature is its appearance. Many lumber mills kill this blue stain by chemical treatment or by kiln drying.

Robins lose to St. Louis

New York Edges Chicago Although Wilson, Cuyler Hit Three Home Runs.

NEW YORK, July 2.—Manager Wilbert Robinson of the Brooklyn Robins was probably hoping today that the Boone was born an orphan and has no relatives scattered across the United States. Boone is the Pacific Coast league slugger who is hurrying to the aid of the pup-afflicted Robins and if he carries here and there on his mission of mercy the Flock's once-gay plumage is liable to be reduced to a few dilapidated pin feathers.

Meanwhile Robbie might try to sign Watkins, right hand gardner for the Cardinals, who led the Saints in an orgy of base clouts that climaxed with 11 runs in the third inning and finally let Brooklyn down and out with a 15 to 7 score. Watkins got two two-baggers and a couple of minor pastings.

Hack Wilson poled his twenty-third circuter of the season and Kiki Cuyler homered twice, but otherwise Freddie Fitzsimmons could not be argued with and the league leading Cubs spiraled before the Giants, 7 to 5. Three Chicago pitchers gave the New Yorkers 13 hits, Terry and Critz each bagging three and Travis Jackson socked a four-baser.

Hensley's triple with two on won for Pittsburgh, 8 to 3 over the Boston Braves, French keeping the Braves bangle-bangles well scattered.

Rain stopped the Athletics-Tigers contest in the fifth inning, giving the A's a 4 to 1 victory, Williams, a second baseman rookie, winning the abbreviated tilt with a homer with two on.

Milt Gaston, not content with holding the Cleveland Indians to three hits, made three safeties himself and the ruddy Sox won, 3 to 1.

Rain swept away all other games. The Yankees-White Sox skirmish coming to a halt in the third inning after the Alabasters had scored one run. They mangle today in a double-header.

WARDS SCORE TWENTY-ONE AGAINST IND. GROCERS' TEAM

An almost exact replica of the Coca Colas, Lutheran Brotherhood game was played at the Utilities park Tuesday evening when Doggy Ward's gave the Independent Grocers a terrible trouncing. The score was 21 to 1.

The real cause for the loss of the game for the Grocers can't be blamed on errors as all through the game the foodmen had five bad misuses. Doggy's victory Tuesday evening was made on clean hits and not errors.

The old ball game started off in fast style when J. Davis and Imbler, both obtained admission to the bases and Butler landed on the ball for a nice hit in the outfield and brought both the boys across the plate for the first two runs.

The Grocers were unable to score their only run until the third inning through several clean hits. In almost every inning the foodmen would place a man on the bases and in most instances as far as third and second but when a safety meant something, nothing occurred.

Then as Amos 'n Andy express it, "the game got regusting," from the third inning on, as in the second inning the Wardmen had sent five men around the bases to score five and followed in the fourth with five more, then continued to score in the fifth and sixth.

As a matter of fact, the Wardmen trickled over the home plate to score runs until the on-lookers couldn't remember the number they had scores.

Then in the first of the eighth the Wardmen scored their last five runs, and this rolled their old score up to the number of 21, but this number satisfied the boys as they wished to score as many runs against the Grocers as the Cokes did against the Brotherhood.

Red Owens who hurled balls and strikes for Doggy allowed one man on base on a walk, while his opponent, Ray Smith for the Grocers, allowed four men free on base and fanned four.

THREE RUNS TO DEFEAT TEAM BY 6-4 SCORE

Displaying strength that herefore has been lacking the Modern Woodmen ball team emerged from the cellar position of the first half to go into a tie for first place in the second half by virtue of a 6-4 victory over the C. C. of A. aggregation Tuesday evening at Masons field.

Major John S. Cohen, will sail out to quarantine aboard the S. S. Mandalay to greet "The Home Town Boy."

And when "Bobby" is landed at the Battery, he will be paraded in triumph up lower Broadway to City Hall where Mayor James J. Walker will present him with the City's Scroll of Honor. Bands will play, and Miss Helen Schaefer, soloist, will sing the Star Spangled Banner. A huge crowd is expected to see the ceremonies and cheer Jones along the line of march.

Mrs. Jones, "Bobby's" mother, has been ill and is not feeling strong and she may not go down the bay to meet her son. But "Bobby's" father, Robert P. Jones, a rugged, bronze-faced man of 51, will go down the harbor with the Georgia delegation.

A GOOD SON

"We're very proud of our boy," said Mr. Jones, in an interview with International News Service. "We think we have reason to be proud of him. He is not only a good golfer, but a good son."

Jones, Sr., talked quite frankly about his famous son, and about golf. He revealed that "Bobby's" mother is an ardent golf fan, and once a fine player herself. She used to shoot in the low 90's. Asked what he shoots he declined to say, although a friend was listening to the interview classified him as "one of the ten players in Atlanta." He won weepstakes at the Eastlake Club in Atlanta, recently. "game," said "Bobby's" father, "reminds me of a story a newspaper man wrote about the late George P. Flynn's game. He said Mr. Flynn played the game furiously and bitterly."

KONJOLA FREES BOY, 11, FROM KIDNEY TROUBLE

Happy Grandmother Tells How Konjola Restored Health of Little Grandson.

MASTER GEORGE RAYMOND BAECHELE.

"Konjola will always have a place in our home. That it has been said countless times by parents who know what this new and different medicine can do. Now read the words of Mrs. Helen Baechle, 1012 Purcell street, Cincinnati, who relates the experience of George Raymond Baechle, 11, her grandson:

"My grandson, who lives with me, was bothered with kidney trouble ever since he was a baby. His bladder was active at night, and he lacked energy and vitality. Konjola worked wonders for me and I decided to give it to George. The first bottle gave encouragement, and after he took three bottles, his bladder action became normal. Today he looks fine and feels better than he ever did. Konjola will always have a place in our home."

It is very true that Konjola loses no time when put to the test but it is strongly recommended that a complete treatment of from six to eight bottles be used.

Konjola is sold in Circleville at Hamilton & Ryan's drug store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—Adv.

a good brand of ball all through the game.

The Foresters started the ball rolling in the first half of the sixth inning when they scored three runs to the one run scored by the boxmakers in the latter part of that inning.

The seventh inning the papermakers held the axmen scoreless and proceeded to push three of their men across the rubber to take a one run lead over the Woodmen aggregation.

Neither team succeeded in increasing their score in the next frame, but in the next trip to the plate the Radcliff men clubbed the old pill in earnest fashion and scored three runs to win the game.

Raymond Brungs of the C. C. of A. pitched a good game of ball for the papermakers. Brungs walked two men and fanned one, while Hall, the Woodmen pitcher, allowed only one man to take a free trip to the first sack and he had two strike outs to his credit.
